Subject: H.R. 5978, Cleaning Product Communications Act

Dear Congressman Bucshon:

Reckitt has a long and proud history of being a leader in ingredient transparency because we firmly believe consumers have both a right to know, as well as a right to understand, what is included in our products. Reckitt proudly maintains a complete product transparency website at www.rbnainfo.com that discloses ingredients for our products sold in the U.S. And all of our products contain a full ingredient statement on the product label which enables consumers to make informed choices at the point of purchase.

We have spent more than a decade working collaboratively with leading NGOs, policymakers and other consumer product companies to standardize disclosure requirements across product lines. Since our inception, Reckitt has been a leader in innovating products in line with the latest scientific advancements, often modifying product formulations before regulations require the industry to do so, so consumers can enjoy safe, high-quality products. To that end, Reckitt was an active leader in developing and supporting the California Cleaning Product Right to Know Act of 2017, the first law in the nation to require precedent-setting ingredient and fragrance disclosure for cleaning products, both on-line and on-label. Our cleaning product ingredient disclosures go beyond this landmark bill and will continue to do so even if future regulations do not meet our high standards for consumer transparency.

We applaud your leadership and commitment to work toward greater ingredient transparency. We look forward to working with you and interested stakeholders across the
